HUMPTY DUMPTY.

In one moment the stage is one succession of marvels doors turn into blank walls, boses into chairs, walls into tables, billiard tables into cages, puddings into heads and vice versa, while boys grow in five minutes from five years old to twenty, to say nothing of other trilles, including a lise donkey and a crying pig. In the midst of all these wonders the ballet breaks in at two or three places, like a dash of poetry in a comic oration.—Art Journal.
